local roads and bridges. On November 20, 1776 he led his army into Hackensack. It camped on The Green as he made the important decision to continue the retreat from overwhelming British and Hessian forces. This prepared the way for the first American victory of the Revolution the following month at the Battle of Trenton.

At The Green is the statue of General Enoch Poor, one of Washington's officers, who died in September 1780. He was buried in the adjoining cemetery of the Dutch Reformed Church. The church, originally built in 1696 and rebuilt in 1791, is the oldest in Bergen County and the second oldest in New Jersey.

Hackensack is the seat of Bergen County in northeastern New Jersey, occupying 4.6 square miles. Elevation is from three feet to 120 feet above sea level. From a number of locations one can see the New York City skyline, seven miles to the east.
